

MEASURING DEVICE FOR MEASURING HARVESTED CROP THROUGHPUT

Abstract of the Disclosure

A measuring device for measuring harvested crop throughput is provided with a dosing device that adds additional grain to the flow of harvested crop material being processed to better calibrate the measuring device. The dosing device adds a defined amount of grain that can be detected by the measuring device.